Measure CC would amend Burbank's City Charter to give the City Council and voters greater flexibility to consider future election methods that best meet the community's needs.

- This flexibility could help the City respond to future changes in state or federal law and reduce the risk of future costly litigation.
- If approved by voters, Measure CC would remove current Charter language so the City could implement future alternative election methods.
- Doesn't require Measure CD to pass to take effect.

Measure CD will ask voters whether Burbank should continue at-large elections or transition to by-district elections for City Council seats.

- The City would be divided into geographic districts. Each would be represented by one council member who lives in that district.
- Voters would only vote once every four years for the City Council member representing the district in which they live.
- Requires Measure CC to pass to take effect.

BURBANK

What Are the Possible Outcomes?

Yes on Measure CC, No on Measure CD

- Continue current at-large elections of City Council members.
- The City Council or voters could implement alternative election methods in the future.
- This added flexibility could help the City adapt to changes in state or federal law and reduce the risk of future costly litigation.

No on Measure CC, Yes on Measure CD

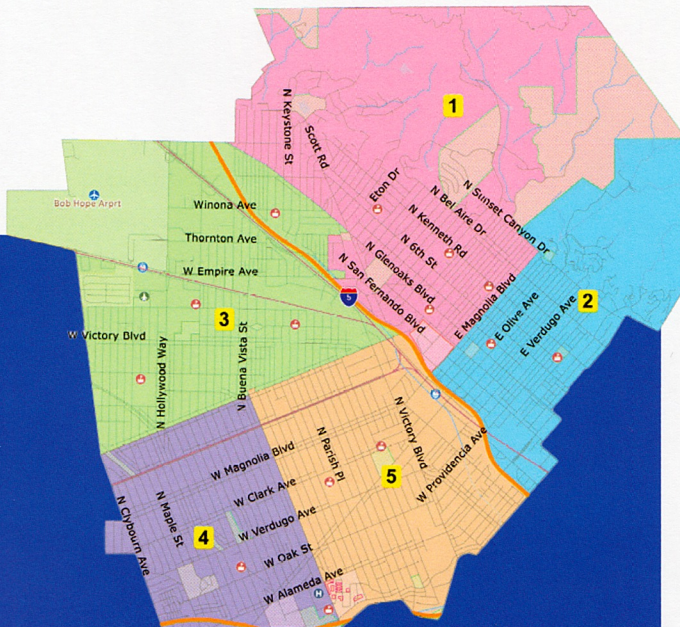

- Continue current at-large elections of City Council members.
- Measure CD cannot take effect without voter approval of Measure CC, which would update the City's Charter to allow by-district elections.

Both Measures Fail

- Continue current at-large elections of City Council members.

Both Measures Pass

- Burbank would transition to by-district elections using Map 130.
- By-district elections would begin with the Nov. 2028 election and conclude in 2030.
- After 2030, the updated Charter would provide the City with flexibility to implement alternative election methods, such as returning to at-large elections.

What is Map 130?

- Map 130 is the proposed City Council district map that would be used if voters approve both measures.
- The map creates five geographic districts with approximately equal numbers of eligible voters. Each district would be represented by one City Council member who must live within the district they represent.
- Map 130 was developed through an extensive public process in 2023 that included public hearings, community workshops, public comment, and consideration of numerous draft maps.

How Would the Transition to Districts Work?

District elections would begin in November 2028 if both measures are approved. Districts 2 and 4 would hold elections in 2028, with the remaining three districts (1, 3 and 5) holding elections in 2030.

The Burbank Unified School District recently completed a similar transition from at-large elections to a by-trustee area election system.

Why Are These Measures on the Ballot?

As part of a 2026 settlement of a 2023 California Voting Rights Act lawsuit challenging Burbank's at-large elections, the City agreed to place these measures on the November 3, 2026 ballot to allow its voters to decide how their council members are elected.
